MR. WILLIAM MORRIS, editor of the Forest City (Ark.) Times, is visiting the city in the interest of his excellent journal. The Times is a wide-awake journal, and we are gratified to know that it often speaks so pleasantly of Memphis and her business. Our old friend, George Francis Train, is now publishing a paper of his own in New York, which, it is needless to say, is suigeneris—just like the man. Every line of it is racy and bug with thought. His obituary of Vanderbilt is alone worth the price of the

She is to-day no richer than when she began the work. It took German heads, German hearts and German blood to accomplish this. We, not knowing the long years and cares of study and prepar-ation, are astonished by the result. It was this sixty years of preparation and education that breathed upon the imperial star of Austria, and it fell. It was this that swept away the army of Napoleon like so many cobwebs, although these armies were so terrible on paper. Ben O'Neal, Colored, Shot Dead by his Friend, Henry Cox - Whisky the Cause of the Deed.

Julia King and Lucy Alexander, No. 323 Madison street extended. Deputy-Coroner Nooe being notified of the homicide, summoned a jury of inquest, and the facts elicited in relation to the affair are as follows: The two men, O'Neal and Cox, called to see their colored friends, Lucy Alexander and Julia King, remaining there until after eleven o'clock. Cox, being somewhat under the influence of liquer, showed no disposition to leave, and the women finally asked him to go, as they wished to retire for the night. He refused to do so, saying that he would not leave, but had a right to remain. The women then requested O'Neal to persuade him to leave, and the latter, approaching Cox, placed his hand on the latter's shoulder, and said: "Come, Cox, let's be going. I am going home too. The ladies want to go to bed." This incensed Cox, who immediately drew a small cartridge pistol, and putting the muzzle near O'Neal's left side, fired. With the report of the pistol O'Neal fell dead on the floor, the bullet having penetrated his heart. The women screamed, and Cox fled out into the darkness. He was pursued by the police, but up to two o'clock had not have continued. The resolution of the him. sued by the police, but up to two o'clock had not been captured. The verdict of the jury was that Ben O'Neal came to his death from a pistol shot fired by the hand of Henry Cox. The murderer is a well-known blacksmith in this city. TELEGRAPH TOLLS.

Reduction of Rates from New York to Memphis, and from This to Other Important Points.

Comparative Figures Showing that Memphis is Not one of the most Favored Points by the Westera Union Company.

The Western Union telegraph company, on the fifteenth of this month, reduced its rates on messages between New York city and Chicago, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Louisville, and all other points west of the metropolis. Messages between New York and the following named points, on the basis of ten words to the message, is illustrated by the following table:

Dec. 1876. 81 00 The above reduction of tolls on message was made in anticipation of the subjoine reduced rates of the Memphis office, which latter took effect July 18, 1876. As will be seen, both the old and the present rates are given, the tolls being on the basis of ten words to a message. The following is the table of rates on messages between this city THE EFFECT OF THE REDUCTION

nay be seen from the statement of Dr. Norvin Green, vice-president of the Western Union telegraph company, who, in conversation with a New York reporter last week, said that every reduction that had been made by the Atlantic and Pacific company had resulted in an increase of the revenues of the Western Union company, and from no section of the country had there been a more prompt response in this way than from New England. The company made several general reduc-tions in rates before the Atlantic and Pacific company was organized, and its object was to continue reductions until there should be only four rates in the United States, ranging from twenty-five cents to one dollar. Rates were gradually reduced between New York and San Francisco, from seven dollars and fifty cents for ten words in 1866, to two dol-lars and fifty cents, before the Atlantic and Pacific company began business. In general reductions there was always a falling off in the receipts for an average of about two months, and about six months passed before there was an increase in the net revenue. The company now had three wires between Omaha and San Francisco, and another nearly completed from Salt Lake City to San Francisco, but it was unable to transact the business between the east and California with the dispatch desired. More wires were needed. It required about eleven minutes to transmit a message from New York to London, England, and nearly seventeen to San Francisco. If San Francisco were a second London the company could well afford to put up at least a dozen wires, and charge only one dollar for ten words. A form of blank has been prepared, and will doubtless be adopted, by which the company will be able to preserve the signature of the sender, the number of words and the amount win be able to preserve the signature of the sender, the number of words, and the amount of charges as long as may be desired, and destroy the messages itself as soon as sent. This will be done by placing the message be-low the signature, from which it may be easi-ly torn and then destroyed. The company will not, however, destroy all messages as soon as they have been transmitted. The resolution adopted by the board of directors in December authorizes the destruction of al essages as soon as the necessary keeping of accounts between the respective offices of the company will allow, "except such messages as may be directed by the sender to be pre-served for a period not exceeding six months." The old blank will be retained for all who desire to have their messages preserved. Mechanical Tinkering Cannot arrest the decomposition of the teeth.

Nothing will do this but that pure disinfectant and preservative which, under the name of Sozodont, has become a staple of the toilet throughout the world. From the Presbyterian Weekly, Baltimore Maryland: "We unhesitatingly recommend Colden's Liebig's liquid extract of beef and tonic invigorator for weakness in the young, or failing health in the old."
